Abstract of the Disclosure

A user can efficiently obtain useful information by breaking down news information distributed in a form of electronic mail, magazines, etc., in units of articles, selecting from useful information from the broken-down articles, collecting the selected articles, re-editing the articles in a form of news information suited to be presented to a user and outputting the news information.